T.G.InFo

Teresa Gregory, LocSec

Yikes! What happened to this year? It has scampered by entirely too quickly. I'm out of breath just thinking about it.

Happy New Year! Turn the page, start a new chapter, ring in the new. That's the popular thought anyway. Start looking for sales on diet aids, smoking cessation information, exercise equipment, vitamins, etc. This reminds me of two things.

When my daughter was in college, I worked as the bookkeeper at my neighborhood Walgreens. Nicorette Gum had hit the market. Calling it "gum" was kind of a misnomer. As I recall, you chewed it enough to get it wet, then you held it in your cheek. It was a three-step program. They showed people "stepping down" on the television commercial until they were smoke-free. It was expensive so we kept it in a locked case by the register. After the first of the year, we sold Step One like crazy. As the weeks went by, sales flattened out. We sold a few boxes of Step Two. In my three years there, I don't ever recall selling a box of Step Three. I guess I should optimistically conclude that people had been so successful with the first two steps that they didn't need the third one, but I'm pretty sure that was not the case.

The other story I remember is one our neighbor told. She worked as a business executive during the day, but by night, she taught aerobics at Butler University. She truly dreaded the New Year because her classes were all overflowing. But she said by the third week, things had pretty much settled back down to the normal numbers.

Resolutions are easy to make and hard to keep. Perhaps we need to rethink this whole resolution thing and stop setting ourselves up for failure. If you really want to make some changes, try a year of resolutions. On New Year's Day when you unveil your list, have one do-able resolution assigned to each month so that by year's end, you could potentially change make twelve changes. Little by little, you might just accomplish what you desire.

I experienced some changes this past year, the largest when my son moved to Los Angeles in April. The coming year offers a few more of those. I have a knee replacement scheduled for March 20. While I'm not dancing around in excitement about the prospect of surgery (actually, I'm not dancing at all for any reason), I am excited about the prospect of better mobility. My doctor is wonderful and I anticipate a speedy recovery.

This is an election year in our group, and I said before the last election that I would not run for LocSec again. When I originally expressed an interest, my intention was one two-year term. I am in my sixth year. Start thinking about who might be a good ExCom member, including yourself! Some of our current members will probably run again, including me (for an at-large position). But new blood is what keeps things fresh and interesting. We will also need a few good people to serve on the Nominating Committee. It's not that hard. And NomCom members cannot run for office so it's a short commitment.

At this time, I'm usually reminding you to renew your membership if it will expire this year. You can do that online. So consider yourself reminded.

I'm also usually trying to whip everyone into a frenzy over the Regional Gathering which occurs the weekend between the football playoffs and the Super Bowl. This year, there will be no RG. I remember when I heard the news that Indianapolis was be hosting, my first thought was, "No RG in 2012." But we will be back in 2013 with the Survivor RG. Yes, I think we will survive the predictions of the Mayans. Back in late 1999, when people thought the apocalypse would occur in the guise of Y2K, my husband astutely pointed out that the cereal I bought had an expiration date into 2000, so we should put our trust in the prophecy of General Mills. He was right.

We will have the Outdoor Gathering. It's the weekend before Memorial Day down in beautiful Versailles State Park. What a deal! Friday through Sunday, food and lodging, all the nature you can stand, and still only $50 per person. No extra charge for the flush toilets.

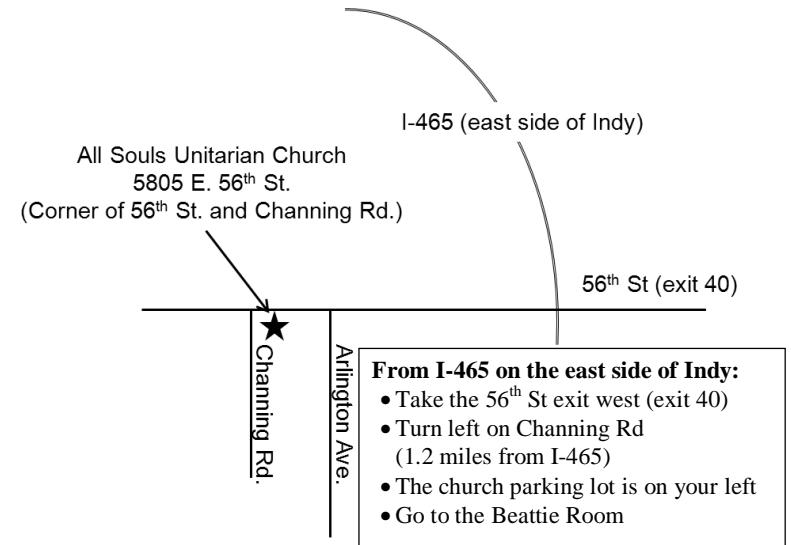

My wish for all of you is that this coming year is the best one yet!

The Monthly Gathering is Moving in February!!!

Starting in February, our second-Friday-of-the-month Gathering will be in a new location. We will be meeting at:

All Souls Unitarian Church
The Beattie Room
5805 E 56th Street
Indianapolis, IN 46226

This location has handicapped access, plenty of free parking, and is a short distance from I-465. There will be more information in the next two issues of MIND about this move. There will be no door fee for the first meeting at the new location. Please plan to come out and see this great new place.

Adventures at the Heartland Film Festival: A Dog, an Actor, and Jean

Jean Rodgers

A high school friend and I are movie-going pals. We go a couple of times a month or more, if possible. Last October we attended a showing of the top-winning film of the 2011 Heartland Film Festival. The first prize is $100,000--higher than that at Cannes, Sundance, Toronto and other film festivals.

The winning film was Red Dog. It is set in northwest Australia and is about the residents of a rough mining town who adopt a Kelpie Shepherd dog who is so distraught after his owner dies, that he searches from town to town looking for him. All the unusual characters in the town make for an engaging story with much laughter and romance, as well as many tugs on your heartstrings.

Since we did not have tickets ahead of time and fearing it would be sold out, we arrived at the theater two hours early. (My late husband would have been so proud.) We were told to return one hour ahead of the showing time when they would start a line for unclaimed tickets. We did so, waiting the hour shifting from foot to foot, complaining about our arthritis, chatting with others in the line, etc. to pass the time.

Finally, we got two tickets and entered the auditorium. The only seats left were in the second row from the front, which we gladly took. Once our necks got used to it, it wasn't so bad. In fact, it turned out to be the best thing that could have happened to us.

After the showing, the lights came on, and an official of the Heartland Film Festival went down front (about six feet from us) and introduced the director and Rohan Nichol, one of the actors in Red Dog, to the wildly clapping audience. After a ten-minute Q & A session, the official said, "Well, our time is up, but we can continue this out in the lobby."

My friend and I got up to leave and, being so close to row one, we thought we'd exit in front of the screen. As we got to the aisle, lo and behold, there they were--the director and the actor. They had not made it to the lobby but were standing answering more questions from individuals. So, of course, we stopped, learning more and more about the dog, the filming, that part of Australia, etc. I happened to say to the actor, "You look a lot like George Clooney." "Well," he says, "I'll take that to the bank!" Then, he leans down and kisses me on the top of my head.

Thus went our adventure of seeing a movie at the Heartland Film Festival in Indianapolis. On the way home, my friend turned to me and said, "Wow. He kissed you on the top of your head. Don't wash that spot." Hmmnn... maybe she's right... a 35-year-old Aussie actor who looks like George Clooney...?

Rohan Nichol

Within Your Ken

Ken Silver RVC4

I've just returned from the latest AMC meeting which took place December 3 in Las Vegas, which wasn't as exciting as you might expect. We were there because we originally thought there was going to be an RG that weekend. So although the RG was never approved, our plans were in place.

Ironically the highlight of the meeting for me had everything to do with games. The awarding of the 2013 Mind Games to St Louis was announced. For those of you who don't know what Mind Games is; it's a national Mensa event at which Mensans spend the weekend playing new games from the companies who sponsor the event. They vote on which ones they like best, and the winners get the Mensa Select label, which pretty much assures the commercial success of the game. So this is a big deal for them and for us. Congratulations to St Louis for a great bid! This is a wonderful opportunity for all of you to conveniently participate in a very fun event, so start making your plans for April 19-21 2013.

An important project that the Finance Committee is working on is the Life Member Dues recalculation. The life expectancy tables have been updated by an actuarial firm, the next step is to estimate the income we may expect to earn from these dues. If the returns are too low, then we need more money upfront. Not a good thing. So at the budget meeting in early February, 2012 we will meet with our investment advisors to discuss our investment policy. If you've ever considered getting a life membership, 2012 would be the year to do it. For many people the price will be going up in 2013; you'll know the new price in plenty of time to do something about it.

In general, a lot of what we talked about was Mensa's use of the social media. The younger members of the AMC are telling us the amount we do isn't enough, or isn't being done correctly so we're not reaching the younger members we would like to keep, and the potential members we would like to attract. This is an area that we will continue to work.

A happy holiday season to all!
Ken

Evansville Meeting

Louis Cady, Evansville Coordinator

Date and Time: Sunday, Jan 8, 2012 at 5 p.m.

Location: Cady Wellness Institute
4727 Rosebud Lane - Suite F
Newburgh, IN 47630

Contact: 812-429-0772, lcady@cadywellness.com

Web site of location: www.cadywellness.com

Topic: Zapping the Brain with Magnetic Pulses – a New 21st Century Treatment for Depression

This will review the latest information on Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation - which has just been started at Cady Wellness Institute. A TMS "petting zoo" for the TMS machine will be available before and after the program.

We will order out pizza. Carbonated beverages provided. Chip into the kitty for eats.

Mensans Dining Out - La Guanaquita

Jean Rodgers

La Guanaquita is an El Salvadorean restaurant on the south side of West 38th Street at 5435 W. 38th.

Mensans dined-out there in October. We liked the food and thought it was a good value. The food seemed authentic. Service was awkward since none of us spoke much Spanish, and the servers did not speak much English.

Attending were Cindy and Bob Zdanky, Ed Chu with daughter Rachel, Larry Marcus, and Jean Rodgers.

We may go back some day after road work is finished on 38th Street.

Mensans Dining Out takes place on the third Saturday of every month at 6 p.m. Questions? Contact Jean Rodgers, jeanerodgers@yahoo.com or Bob Zdanky, Zdanky@gmail.com.

My Missed Photo Opportunity

Teresa Gregory

Two years ago, I wrote an article with this title for the January MIND. I told about my experience as a 16-year-old high school student who worked as a volunteer for Robert Kennedy during the 1968 Presidential Primary. The photo I didn't get was me shaking his hand during an unexpected meeting.

In November of this year, I received an email from a gentleman in Michigan named Paul Lee. He had read my story online. During research for a book that he is writing about Robert Kennedy, he discovered a treasure trove of 250 photographs archived at the University of Michigan. These were taken in Indianapolis by a student photographer for the U-M campus newspaper. Mr. Lee had hoped that I could find myself in one of these pictures. I looked. While these were all taken the same day here in Indy (Mr. Lee even sent me a scanned copy of the typed itinerary for that day), none were taken at Eastgate Shopping Center, the Senator's destination when I met him. But these are as close as I'll probably ever get. That, in itself, is exciting.

The nice side result has been that Mr. Lee and I have exchanged some interesting emails. He grew up in Detroit and has never been to Indianapolis. I grew up here. He has asked me questions that I have been able to answer about the city and the newspapers, etc., and, because of his research, he has provided me with answers that have filled in some of the gaps in my memory. It's been fun to relive that moment in time, even if I'm not in the pictures.

In a somewhat parallel situation, my son made a comment on Facebook about seeing a particular model of car for sale in Los Angeles where he lives. It was one that I knew well and it reminded me of his dad.

I uploaded a picture taken Christmas Day, 1985, of my husband, his brother, and my then 3-year-old son. I know that my kids are "Facebook friends" with some of their cousins, so I asked my daughter to make sure some of them saw the picture.

This started a flurry of posts. I looked through an envelope and pulled out what I think are the only two pictures of my husband and his three brothers together. One was taken in 1974 and one in 1978. I posted some others, too.

The response was nothing I could have expected. The children of these brothers were so delighted to see the pictures, to see their dads so young and happy. It was a thrill for me to be able to share these memories. And, as a result, I am now Facebook friends with several of them, and with my sister-in-law whom I had not heard from in seven years.

In this past month, I've become more aware of the power of the Internet and the connections that we make with it. It's a chronicler of our daily lives, a link to our extended family, and a portal to our past. A picture shared truly can be worth a thousand words when it starts a new conversation or rekindles a lost relationship.

Ancient Remains

Robert O. Adair

Deep in the jungle,
covered with vines
and encroaching trees,
ancient walls and battlements
once drenched in blood from fierce battles between heroic warriors!
Stone paved streets,
weed covered now,
once teeming with busy multitudes.
Temples of forgotten, pagan gods
with bloodstained altars.
Deeply hidden in dark, dank,
subterranean chambers
Solid gold ingots, piled high,
Chests embellished with silver and ivory,
filled to overflowing
with glittering emeralds,
blood red rubies and shining pearls!
Proud, soaring towers
once surveyed mighty vistas of hubristic, Imperial power.
Lions roam the crumbling royal halls,
lizards crawl in the kings chambers
apes chatter among the trees, while birds sing over the whitened bones
of a once mighty army.
Alas! For the passing glory of this world!

Defining Ineffable

Judson M. Horning

I was just listening to a discussion of the changes in the English version of the Catholic liturgy. Apparently, one of the words that people were having trouble with was "ineffable". It is really a very simple word.
The prefix "in-" means "not".
So, obviously, "ineffable" means "not effable". What could be easier than that?

Central Indiana Mensa Ex-Com Minutes 10/25/11

Karen Zwick, Newsletter Editor

LocSec Teresa Gregory opened the meeting at 7:00 p.m. Members present include Gregory, Jan Pfeil Doyle, Cyndi Kuyper, Alan Schmidt, Bob Zdanky, and Karen Zwick. Absent: David Bonner, Mindy Grayson, and Karen Wilczewski, while Judd Horning and Eric Ellis were guests.

The minutes of the September Ex-Com meeting were accepted with minor corrections. (Karen Zwick moved; Bob Zdanky seconded the motion. It passed unanimously.)

Alan Schmidt presented the Treasurer's report. The balance as of 9/26/11 was $19,477.44. He further mentioned that 32 people attended the monthly meeting (Jan Pfeil Doyle moved; Cyndi Kuyper seconded the motion. It passed unanimously.)

The membership report by Gregory showed 527 members, 6 new members, 1 re-instating member, 3 renewing members, 3 move-in members, and 18 prospects.

Old Business

Petra Ritchie has submitted a request to the All Souls Unitarian church to use one of their meeting rooms for our monthly gathering on the second Friday evening of each month. Their board will meet and vote on our request on November 7. We await their decision and associated costs before making a decision to change the monthly gathering location. We will stay at our current location at least through January 2012.

If we decide to change locations, we will communicate the change multiple times using all reasonably available communication methods.

We had discussed offering a free meeting at last month's ExCom meeting. We agreed to delay offering a free meeting until we've made a decision regarding moving locations for the monthly meeting.

Teresa Gregory shared the results of our October testing initiatives. We offered testing in three locations: Indianapolis, Muncie, and Carmel. The testing dates and locations were communicated and advertised. We are disappointed by the result of only five people seeking testing: four persons in Indianapolis, none in Muncie, and one in Carmel.

New Business

We will include a reminder regarding applying for scholarships in the next issue of MIND. We will include information regarding eligibility for scholarships and the web site location of the application form.

The meeting adjourned at 8:15 p.m. (Karen Zwick moved; Cyndi Kuyper seconded the motion. It passed unanimously.)

Respectfully submitted,
Karen Zwick
